

The Daily Courant.

Thursday, July 22. 1708.

London, July 22.

Yesterday arriv'd from Flanders the Mail of Friday last.

Milan, July 11.

TIS thought, that the Death of the Duke of Mantua without Issue, will occasion new Troubles in Italy. 3 Imperial Regiments which were marching from that Dutchy to Piemont, are turn'd back thither again, to secure all the Places of Strength in that Country. They write from Turin, that the Army of the Duke of Savoy would move to begin the military Operations the 16th Instant; and that 'tis hop'd they will undertake something of Importance before the End of this Month. The bad Ways and the numerous Retinue of the Queen of Spain, will retard her Arrival at Vado till the 13th Instant. Her Majesty was entertain'd and complimented in the Lumelline by the Marquis of Gordana, in the Name of the Duke of Savoy, as Queen of Spain. 'Tis advis'd from Final, that Admiral Leake had suspended for some Days the Imbarkation of the Troops; but that on the Arrival of the Queen of Spain, they will immediately go on Board. They also tell us, that a Squadron of 7 Men of War were about to be detach'd to Naples, to attempt with the Troops drawn together in Calabria to reduce the Island of Sicily to the Obedience of King Charles III.

From the Antwerp Courant, &c. dated July 27.

Paris, July 23. Tho' Affairs in Spain go pretty well to the King's Satisfaction, he is extremely perplex'd about the State of things in the Netherlands, Germany and Savoy; and principally in the last of those Countries; where the Enemy's Troops are so numerous, that the Duke of Savoy seems to design to pass the Mountains and enter Dauphine, while the Imperialists make a strong Diversion in Provence. The Loss our Army suffer'd in the unfortunate Action near Audenarde, amounts in kill'd, wounded, and Deserters, to above 13000 Men: The Regiment du Roy did not acquit themselves well, but retir'd too soon, and by so doing gave the Enemy an Opportunity to possess themselves of a narrow Way, and to cut off and take Prisoners a great Number of our Men. The Troops of King Philip shew'd extraordinary Courage in the Fight, and suffer'd much. The Duke of Berwick is to continue with his flying Camp between Doway and Lille till farther Order. The Duke of Burgundy continues with the Army of the two Crowns behind the Canal of Bruges, and has Orders to keep in that Post, to which End he is to strengthen his Intrenchments with Redoubts, Forts and Pallisadoes.

Letters from Perpignan of the 13th Instant, tell us the Enemy had sent all their Cavalry from about Gironne and Vich towards Terragona, to reinforce the Army under General Staremberg; and that the Duke de Noailles was coming back with all his Troops to Bolo on the Tech: So that there is an End of the Campaign on that side. Two Days ago arriv'd at Fontainebleau a Courier from the Duke of Orleans, with Advice that the Garrison of Tortosa, consisting of 3000 Men, among them 2 very fine English Regiments, march'd out at the Breach the 15th, with 6 Cannon, 2 Mortars, their Baggage and all other Marks of Honour, to be conducted to Barcelona. By an Article of the Capitulation, the Governour of Tortosa oblig'd himself to cause the Castle of Arnes on the River Algas 6 Miles from Tortosa and the principal Retreat of the Miquelets, to be deliver'd up. Above 300 Houses were destroy'd in the Town by our Bombs. The Duke of Orleans did not reject any of the Demands of the Garrison of Tortosa, because he foresaw that his Troops would have suffer'd very much by the Delay of a few Days; his Horse especially beginning to want Forrage. His Royal Highness having given all the necessary Orders for repairing the Breaches and damag'd Fortifications, design'd to march and joyn the Bodies commanded by M. d'Estain and Fontboisard and put the Troops into Quarters of Refreshment in the Plains of Urgel and Vicq. Yesterday the King caus'd to be sung at Fontainebleau for the taking of Tortosa, and to Morrow the like will be done in our Cathedral.

From the Brussels Gazette, dated July 27.

Brussels, July 27. The heavy Artillery from Sas van Ghent arriv'd the 25th in the Evening in our Canal, consisting of between 60 and 70 Cannon and 20 Mortars, with the Ammunition and other Necessaries, under a strong Guard led by M. de Pascal Lieutenant General and Governour of this City. Besides this Artillery, 20 heavy Cannon are expected from Maestricht.

By Letters from the Camp of the high Allies at Werwick we have an Account, that the Prince d'Avergne was return'd thither with a Detachment from an Incurion into the Enemy's Country: That another Detachment of 5 or 6000 Horse was sent to extend Contributions far up into France: And that the Castellanes of the Enemy's Country had been order'd to furnish a sufficient number of Horses to draw the Artillery of the Allies. The Corn and Meal found in Comines and Warneton is remov'd to Menin, and Bread is made of it for the Army of the Allies. The Enemy's Army continues encamp'd at Lovendegem, and being much streighten'd for Room, Forrage is become scarce with them; they also begin to be in want of Provisions.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated July 27.

Ghent, July 25. The French Army continues in their former Camp on the Canal of Bruges. The Intrenchments which the Duke of Burgundy causes to be made, are of extraordinary strength. On Sunday last the Duke of Berwick came to the French Camp, where a great Council of War was held; and the next Day went back again by the Way of Furnes to Lille. The 23d the Council of State of the Spanish Netherlands residing at Brussels, caus'd a Placart to be publish'd, forbidding under severe Penalties the carrying any Corn or Salt to the Country of Waes.
